

Wills and Estates

for people living in a community

Guide for Community Workers

éduc

SAVOIR C'EST POUVOIR

ABOUT ÉDUCALOI

Éducaloi is a non-profit organization that helps people understand the law in Quebec. It does this using everyday language.

About the Workshop

This workshop explains the rules that apply to wills and estates in Indigenous communities.

- 1 Part One explains the importance of making a will and how to make one.
- 2 Part Two explains the first steps to take after a loved one dies.

Target Audience

This workshop was developed for Indigenous communities in Quebec that are covered by the Indian Act. It explains the rules for wills and estates for Indigenous people who are

- registered under the Indian Act, and
- living in a community (“reserve”) when they die.

These rules also apply if the person is temporarily away from the community or is living outside the community, for example, to study or for health reasons.

Important!

The workshop does not apply to these Indigenous people:

- living in communities where specific rules apply (for example, Inuit, Naskapi, Cree and Métis people)
- living outside a community (“off reserve”)

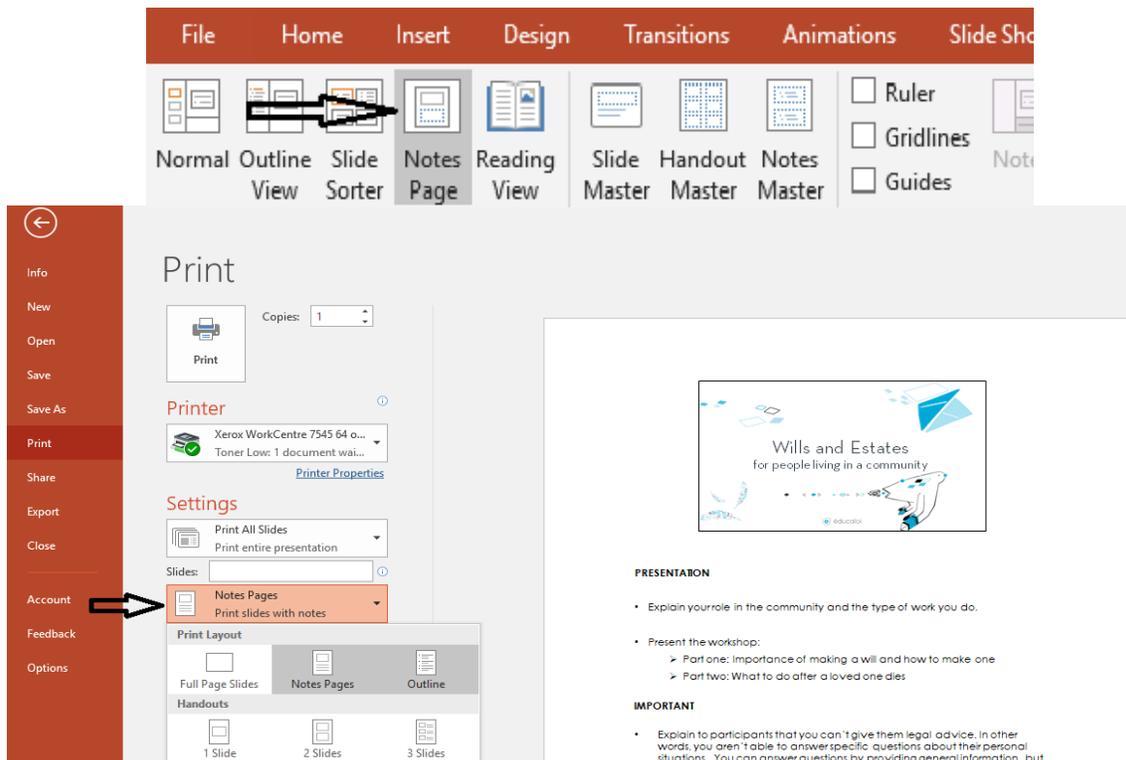

Workshop Materials

PowerPoint

The PowerPoint presentation will help participants follow along, but you can give the workshop without using the slides. It's simply a visual tool to accompany your presentation.

Whether or not you present the slides, we recommend that you read and print the detailed notes below the slides.

- To view the notes in PowerPoint, click on View in the toolbar and then Notes Page.
- To print the PowerPoint document with this additional information, click on File and select Print. Under Settings, select Notes Pages.

In the electronic version of the PowerPoint presentation, the text below the slides may extend beyond the space provided (depending on your computer set up). If this is the case, try changing the font or font size.

Pamphlet

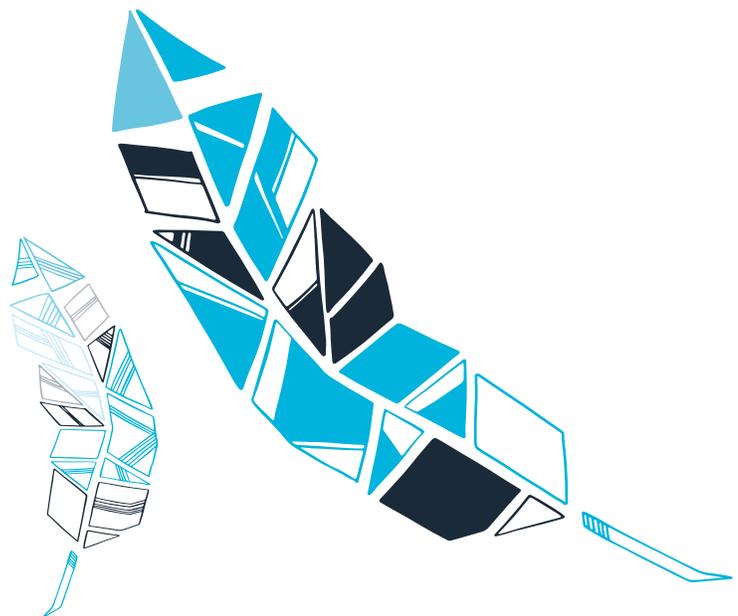

We recommend that you have these Éducaloi pamphlets with you at the workshop:

- Making a Will When You Live in an Indigenous Community
- When a Loved One Dies in an Indigenous Community

You can hand them out to participants so they'll have the information covered during the workshop. Wait until the end of the workshop to distribute the pamphlets so you'll have the participants' full attention while you're speaking.

These pamphlets are available free of charge from Éducaloi. Visit Éducaloi's website and click on Contact Us or enter www.educaloi.qc.ca/en/contact-us in your browser's address bar.

Tips for Presenting the Workshop

We suggest inviting a Band Council representative to the workshop who can answer questions about services for members and the community's particular land rules.

The objective of the workshop is to promote constructive dialogue, so you can adapt it to your audience as needed. Let yourself be guided by your conversations with participants.

We provide discussion points that can help make your presentation more dynamic. By encouraging participants to reflect on what they already know, it will be easier for them to learn new concepts. The discussion points are suggestions only; you can be creative and adapt them.

It's not necessary to convey all the information in the notes under the PowerPoint slides. You can use your discretion based on the audience.

Lastly, the workshop provides several resources for participants. They can learn more from Éducaloi's online articles on Indigenous wills and estates: www.educaloi.qc.ca/en/indigenous-wills-and-estates.

Length

The workshop lasts about an hour. But you can take more time if participants ask questions or want to talk about some of the issues raised.

◇
△
◇
◇
◇
◆
▽

Important

The workshop was revised in June 2019. We recommend that you pay attention to any changes that may have occurred since then and check Éducaloi's website if you have any questions.

The information in this guide is not meant to be a legal opinion.

◇
△
◇
◇
◇
◆
▽

Important

Community workers are free to use and reproduce this guide for non-commercial reasons. If you do, please mention that the information comes from Éducaloi. You must get written permission from Éducaloi to use or reproduce this guide for any other reason.

© ÉDUCALOI, 2019.

◆
◆
△
◇
▽
◆
◇
◇
◇
◇

This workshop was made possible with the financial support of Indigenous Services Canada.

Indigenous Services
Canada

Services aux
Autochtones Canada

We also thank our distribution partner First Nations of Quebec and Labrador Health and Social Services Commission (FNQLHSSC).